

ROBERT FISHER, 79, DIES SUDDENLY ON SUNDAY

PIANO SELECTIONS AND PLAYS FEATURE CLUB MEET

Beautiful decorations of flowers and shrubs, and a splendid program of music and short plays, featured the last meet for the summer of the Country Club of Washington township, at the clubhouse in Centerville Tuesday afternoon.

Through the efforts of the day's hostesses: Mrs. J. R. Whipple, Mrs. Jack Williamson and Mrs. John Stevenson, the California Nursery company, furnished a truck load of shrubs and flowers which were effectively arranged by a landscape expert from the nursery. The club is extremely grateful to George Roeding, Jr., nursery head, for making the arrangement possible.

Three one act plays were produced by the Dramatics section of the club. Each was charmingly done, the casts appearing in the costumes of the represented periods. The plays were:

"The Pot of Broth," played by Mrs. Josephine A. Brown, Mrs. C. E. Anderson and Mrs. Raymond Pond. "The Crystal Gazer," played by Mrs. Howard Chadbourne and Mrs. F. T. Dusterberry, and "Tell a Woman," played by Mrs. Walter Robie, Mrs. August May, Mrs. Harvey Braun and Mrs. J. E. Townsend.

Attendance was splendid, there being over 100 present.

The feature of the day was a piano recital by Henri E. Salz, pianist. He played several classical selections and at the request of members rendered two of his own compositions.

Stricken Late Saturday Night, Elderly Man Passes

Robert Fisher, 79 years of age, passed away very suddenly early Sunday morning at his home on Cherry Lane, near Niles. Continuing his active life right up to the end, Fisher worked in his garden until after 5:00 o'clock Saturday evening. He died fifteen minutes after midnight the same night following an illness of only a few hours.

Born in Bradford, Yorkshire, England, in 1854, Fisher passed the early years of his life as a dyer in the woolen mills about Bradford. Just previous to his leaving England for the United States, he had been chief dyer in the great Bradford mill, the largest establishment of its kind in the British Isles. On coming to the United States in 1881 from Bradford, Fisher engaged in the fibre dying business in and about Lowell, Massachusetts. From there he worked at the same trade throughout the states of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In 1894, Fisher erected his own dyeing and cleaning establishment in Butler, Pennsylvania where he carried on early experiments in the use of aniline dyes and in plaid dyeing. After twenty-three years in this business, which was at that time a new field, he retired from active work in 1917 and came, with Mrs. Fisher, to live in California. The Fishers built their home on Cherry Lane, near Niles, where they have lived since.

Born and raised in England, Fisher, in 1867, married Sybil Hartley, also of Bradford. The couple were feted just a few weeks ago by the Golden Wedding Club, of Niles, on the occasion of their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary.

Since his retirement from business in 1917, Fisher had returned to England four times to renew old friendships and re-acquaint himself with his old environment. During one of his latter trips he was voted an honorary member of the Octogenarian Club of Bradford, an organization of elderly men who keep alive their interest in cricket and other athletic pursuits.

Following photography as a hobby, Fisher was noted in this region for his fine work. A picture, presented by him to the Niles library, has been remarked by experts for its clear detail. The last picture he took was of the Golden Wedding Club group at a birthday dinner tendered to one of its members Monday of last week.

Fisher was a life member of the Alameda county library board, an institution in which he was greatly interested. An omnivorous reader, he appreciated and assisted the function of the Jane Clough Memorial Library at Niles.

Possessing an unusually penetrating mind, Fisher was greatly interested in economic trends and in world affairs. All his life he maintained a subscription to the Manchester Guardian, leading European newspaper. Paying no attention to outworn traditions, Fisher was cognizant of the problems facing the youth of the world and followed with great interest the activities of youthful groups

Rose, Milpitas youth and a student at San Jose State college, pleasantly surprised their friends Tuesday when they returned from Reno, that American Gretna Green, and told of their marriage. The bride is to be graduated from the Washington Union high school tonight. Having returned from Reno on Tuesday, Mrs. Rose yesterday attended the graduation breakfast at the home of A. J. Rathbone, principal.

Russell Ross and Marjory Henry accompanied the couple to Reno and served as witnesses to their marriage.

Following the bride's graduation, the couple will leave on a short honeymoon. They plan to make their home in Milpitas.

NILES DAIRYMAN HURT WHEN MOUNT FALLS IN FIELD

Carl Zwissig, Niles dairyman, was injured last week when he was thrown from his horse while driving cattle on his ranch near Niles. His collar bone was broken in the fall.

Intent on driving in a recalcitrant cow that had broken away from the herd several times, Zwissig failed to notice an old window casement that was lying in the field, and rode his mount directly over it. The rectangular wooden contrivance entangled the hind legs of the horse, throwing the animal and Zwissig to the ground.

Violet Silva Becomes Bride of Joseph Silva

Miss Violet Silva, of Alvarado, became the bride of Joseph Silva, also of Alvarado, at 7:00 o'clock Thursday morning of last week in St. Annes Catholic church. Mrs. Silva is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Silva, of Union City road. She is employed in the Leslie California Salt Works.

Saia Olivencio, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Olivencio, took his marriage vows on Saturday morning in San Jose. The bride is a resident of Berkeley. The couple were honored on Saturday evening at a dance in the parish hall.

WASHINGTON HIGH TO GRADUATE NINETY-ONE

Largest Class In History of School to Get Diplomas

Ending their four years of preparatory work, ninety-one seniors of Washington Union High school will be graduated tonight in the high school auditorium, at the forty second commencement exercises of the institution. An impressive program is planned, headed by the address of Dr. Daniel Crosby, of Oakland, the only living member of the class of '93, and one of the first to be graduated from the local high school.

In his address, Dr. Crosby will stress the fact that this year's graduates are emerging into a new world—a world turning to new ideas in politics, law and medicine. Dr. Crosby will point out the present flux of the social order, and the change in the basic philosophy of the economic world. He will tell of the growth of the collective mind of the world through the dogma of centuries ago, through the blind patriotism of the era just passed, and into the consciousness of economic factors that is gripping the world today.

He will speak from the point of view of one who regards the approach of a new era, as an opportunity to enter energetically into a period of revival, a period in which to escape from the stupidities of yesterday. He will tell of the value of economic stress as a trial that brings a reevaluation of things, a new inventory of the world's morale, which latter has been weakened and smothered by years of spurious prosperity. Dr. Crosby will tell the graduates that the raising of a new social superstructure, and the unlimited change in all fields offer them untold opportunity to make life worth while.

Growth of the school district and of the communities of the township, is evidenced by the fact that this is the largest class ever to be graduated from the school.

Tickets for the commencement may be obtained from the high school office or from members of the graduating class.

The evening's program is: Overture, "Princess of India"—K. L. King—Washington Union High School Band.

Class March, "War March of the Priests"—F. Mendelsohn—Washington Union High School Band. Invocation—Rev. Father McCaul. "A Perfect Day," Carrie Jacobs Bond—Seniors' Mixed Chorus.

Presentation of Perfect Attendance Award—J. V. Gould. Presentation of C. S. F. Life Membership Awards—B. L. Webb. Class Song—Senior Class of '33. Address—Dr. Daniel Crosby.

Presentation of Diplomas—M. J. Overacker, President of Board of Trustees.

Finale—Song—Brass Quintette. Benediction—Rev. Father McCaul. Class March, "War March of the Priests"—F. Mendelsohn.

The reception will be held after graduation in the gymnasium. The graduates are: Jewell Amaral, Aldina Azevedo, Palmeda Avilla, Haruye Baba,

CHAMBER RECEIVES INVITATIONS TO TWO CIVIC OUTINGS

Pleasanton Junior Chamber and Salinas Mayor Send Word

Confronted with an invitation from Mayor E. J. Leach, of Salinas, to the "Mayor of Niles," asking the latter to attend the Salinas Rodeo, the Niles Chamber of Commerce Monday admitted its perplexity in furnishing a fully equipped mayor on such short notice. In the absence of E. Glassbrook, upon whom some of the chamber enthusiasts were going to thrust the honor of temporary mayoralty, the body decided to confess to the Salinas official, and send a chamber delegation in place of the lacking dignitary. In the letter to the chamber, the Salinas mayor stated that cooperation of community groups and organizations throughout the state could do much to induce tourist dollars into local coffers.

A second letter read to the Niles body by A. J. Petsche, secretary, contained an invitation from the Pleasanton Junior Chamber of Commerce to attend the big booster barbecue to be held at McKinley park, Pleasanton, at 7 p. m. on the evening of June 14. The local civic group decided to arrange a group of delegates and send word to the Pleasanton chamber of their acceptance.

It was stated at the meeting that work on the road to extend First street through the California Nursery Company grounds would begin sometime in the near future. George Roeding, Jr., intends to turn the right-of-way over to the county as soon as he had finished removing the shrubs and bath buildings now located on it.

Supervisor Ralph V. Richmond in discussing the assumption of road maintenance and expense by the state, said that a considerable saving should be made in county road expenses, especially in southern Alameda county, where considerable road responsibility has been taken over by the state.

FORMER TOWNSHIP MEN NOW WORLD FAMED ENGINEERS

Off to get gold among the cannibals, L. A. Decoto and F. C. Runkel sailed last Wednesday for New Guinea aboard the Oceanic liner Mariposa. Leaving San Francisco, the two will leave the ship at New Guinea and fly into the Bulolo gold fields. Both natives of southern Alameda county, Decoto and Runkel are graduates of the University of California school of mines. Each has achieved fame in his profession. Last year, in the face of tropical jungle and cannibals, Decoto surveyed and mapped out the mines in the Bulolo district, to which the only means of entrance is by airplane. Decoto designed the planes necessary to carry ten tons of dredge parts a trip. As a result of surmounting unheard-of obstacles in mining practice, Decoto and Runkel take their place among the great engineers of the present time.

VIERY ON FISHING TRIP

Gladford Viery, MacMarr manager, left early Wednesday morning on an extended fishing trip to various parts of the state. He intends to move from place to place.

His first stop was to be at the Carquin straits, where he will pit his skill against the wily striped bass.

1000 Acres of Apricots In Four Counties Backing $40 Ton Price

An organization of canning apricot producers of Alameda, Santa Clara, Contra Costa and San Benito counties was launched in San Jose last week at a meeting of growers representing 1000 acres. The organization is to take advantage, under the farm relief act, of the government aid which is to be made available to organized producers.

The new organization is backing a $40-per-ton price for twelve-to-the-pound this season, and reports this week indicate a noticeable stiffening of growers behind this price since it was announced two weeks ago. The new organization looks to Washington township and southern Alameda county, to support the movement for a decent canning apricot price this year. If not called upon soon by representatives of the new group, farmers in this area may obtain any information they desire by writing to Lyman Lanz, care of the Prune Pool, room 29, Auzerais building, San Jose.

A significant table on tonnage returns to canning apricot growers from the 1918 season to the present, showing the dwindling returns which the new organization proposes to raise, was compiled at a meeting last week. The statistics are as follows:

1920$115	1927$75
1921$ 50	1928$65
1922$100	1929$75-$85
1923$25-$35	1930$42-$50
1924$ 65	1931$25-$35
1925$ 60	1932$20-$25

The new cooperatives intend to make use of the government aid as it is set forth in the Farm Relief Act and the Industry Stabilization Act, which provides that the government will enforce any minority to live up to, and cooperate with a plan approved by the majority. If the new organization can get a majority of the apricot acreage behind the demands for a better price, the government will see to it that no grower undersells or in any way hinders the function of the group.

Rather than support the growers in their demands for a certain price, the government, if the growers can prove a majority behind the new plans, arbitrate with the canners for a satisfactory price.

Fully realizing that the apricot industry is to survive only by co-operation, the new organization hopes to obtain a majority of the acreage before the harvest begins this season. Since the passage of the Farm Relief Act, farmers who wish to cooperate in this plan may rest assured that the entire industry is with him, and not divided into organized and unorganized groups. A majority of the growers behind this plan will assure a 100 per cent industry, which has been the need of the apricot sections for several years.

Battered Barber

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

BATTERED didn't begin to express the havoc wrought in Barber's big frame, when they carried him off the football field and swiftly to the nearest hospital.

After they had finished with him—the nurse and surgeons—Barber looked out from his multitudinous bandages with mournful eyes and sensed the truth.

"No more football—for me?" he essayed a smile. "You've been overgenerous with your bandages, haven't you?" he queried.

"Not more than you needed, my lad," said one kindly surgeon. "Aside from a seriously smashed knee, you also have a twisted wrist, a dislocated collar bone and a slightly cracked nose bridge."

"But apart from that I'm quite all right." Barber's twisted smile hurt the tender hearts of those nurses who had helped the surgeons patch up the battered player. "Suppose I'll have to take to addressing envelopes for a career."

"Or writing poetry," suggested the surgeon. "It's certain you'll never play football again—and the country's going to miss you, my boy."

The nurses turned away. Barber's fine mouth, despite the effort he made, was quivering. A football hero he was and now he lay physically shattered and rudely sundered from all that made life interesting.

There was one, however, who looked upon Barber's plight with eyes that had a glint of triumph in them. She, the girl whom Barber had wanted to marry, had persistently refused to marry a professional football player. Perhaps, now that football as a profession had been snatched from him, he would listen to reason and take up some business which would mean a regular salary and some kind of definite return assured.

"At any rate," she had often said to Barber, "I would much prefer to love a man who made his living by means of his brain power instead of by his athletic accomplishments."

"You don't love me, Marcella, or you wouldn't mind my profession being what it is—it is perfectly honorable."

So in the hospital Barber lay there thinking over all that Marcella had said and realizing that she certainly had a right to her views. Certainly athletes could not be called interesting as a whole.

And as week upon week went by and Barber still lay in the hospital the time began to hang heavily upon him. Tired of reading, bored with crossword puzzles, quite fed up with his own inner resources Barber felt a prey to depression.

It was his little red-haired nurse whom he nicknamed Crimson Rambler because of her hair and her natural tendency to ramble happily all over the place in search of amusement for her patients, who brought him some modeling wax.

"It's what children love to play with on a rainy day. Now you just start right in and try to model me or that bed post—whichever interests you most."

Barber laughed and pressed the soft clay with his fingers now sensitive to suffering and strangely unlike his own strong hands. As a matter of fact, Barber had always had a secret longing to model things but had crushed down the feeling lest he be considered a first-class nut.

And so, in another week's time, there was a most amusing array of tiny figures standing upright on his bedside stand. Nurses short and nurses tall—nurses smiling and nurses glum—and a generous sprinkling of white-robed surgeons and a kiddie or two all joined in that curious group of small images.

But above all Barber's eyes had taken on a new interest in things about him. The depression was gradually giving way to something akin to hidden fires bursting outwardly into flame.

And that career of art, started in so curious a way, was to carry Barber to the very heights, for the little figures standing so bravely there in the hospital, held that in their workmanship which only the master hand can contribute.

Marcella felt her heart beat triumphantly, for surely now she would say yes to the question which Barber had so many times asked.

It was through the Crimson Rambler that the dragging forth of a sculptor-to-be took place, for in her rambling about she came across one who was well in a position to express a verdict on those little nurses, surgeons and children.

And when they were carried carefully away to the great one's studio for inspection, a tear squeezed through the dark brown lashes of Crimson Rambler.

Barber saw it, and his heart gave a great bound.

"Darling!" he cried swiftly and seized the white hand hanging limply beside his bed. "Would you have loved me if I had still been a football player?"

"I would love you if you were the ash man," Crimson Rambler admitted.

Name "Jehol" Pronounced "RooHoo" by the Chinese

The name Jehol is composed of two Chinese words. It therefore can be divided into two parts: namely, "Je," meaning hot, and "Ho," meaning river. So it is, literally, "Hot river."

For English-speaking purposes, the pronunciation of the first part is almost the same as the French "Je" (a zh sound). But in Chinese, read it as "brook," dropping the sound of "b" and "k." The second part of the word "Ho" can be pronounced as the word "hook" without the "k." So Jehol can be correctly pronounced as "RooHoo," with accent on the second syllable.

The Peking dialect adds an "er" sound to nearly every noun. Hence, "RooHooer"—Jehol. But outside Peking (or Peiping) it is pronounced as Jehol and RooHoo, without the suffix "er."

U. S. May Adopt One More Hardwood From Over-Seas

Immigration to the United States has not been limited to people but has extended to trees as well, according to J. A. Cope of the department of forestry, Cornell university. Three important European cone-bearers have already taken a prominent place in the American forest of the future.

Norway spruce is a native of Europe and is a dominant part of the forest landscape of the highlands and lower mountain slopes of central Europe. Scotch pine, which has been used exclusively for reforestation work in New York state, is not a native of Scotland, but is found in vast areas in Prussia and Scandinavia. The imported Scotch pine sheds snow better than the native kind, he says. European larch is also largely used in New York state. It is extremely fast growing. The greatest volume of timber growing on an acre of land in all Europe is a stand of larch planted 240 years ago, located in southeast Finland.

Professor Cope predicts that one more important hardwood may be added to the list of imported trees from Europe. The European beech, he says, is faster growing, more decay resistant, has better form and habit, and its lumber commands a far higher price than that from the American beech.

Exchange or Trade Rate

The rate of exchange is the amount of its own money a bank will pay for the currency of a foreign country. On a typical day a New York bank would give you $3.34 for a British pound note, $3.90 for 100 French francs, and 28 cents for a Chinese silver dollar. These rates vary from day to day, and are really an expression of the faith of the banks in the money of another country.

ALVARADO WEEKLY NEWS

ALVARADO BALL TEAM WALLOPS HAYWARD AGGRESSION

The Alvarado Merchants won a 10 to 9 victory over the Hayward Athletics on Sunday at the new Alvarado diamond. The game lasted four hours.

In the seventh inning, Stanley Roderick popped a rally by forcing one man to pop up and striking out another.

The ninth inning, free for all, found the Merchants starting off when John Silva hit a triple, Amaral singled, scoring Silva. M. Amaral struck out and Jacinto singled, stole second, then scored on a hit by Rivers.

Field Captain "Peanuts" Hendricks, who recently injured his arm, took the place of Jacinto on second and placed the latter at short to take the place of Joe Coela who left the game when spiked by a Hayward man. Stanley Rodericks escaped being spiked by a close margin.

The leading batsman of the day was Manuel Amaral with three for five. Bonacarus and Silva both hit triples.

Tony Rivers, of Newark, formerly of Alvarado, displayed some fine catching ability during the game. He was recently declared by Coach Regli, of Washington Union High school, to be one of its most valuable players of 1933.

FORDS DROP CLOSE ONE TO CHAPEL OF THE OAKS

"One more run!" pleaded Ira B. Hodgkins, manager of the Hodgkins Fords, as Sunday's game with the Chapel of Oaks team swung into the ninth inning, with the score at 8-7, with the Fords on the short end.

Stricken again with their now almost chronic case of errors, this time in the fourth and fifth innings, the Fords lost a close game to the Chapel of Oaks team from Oakland. Both Spud Dagermark and Sheehan, Chapel hurler, tossed fine games of ball, Spud giving nine hits, striking out eight and walking none. Sheehan gave eleven hits, struck out fourteen and walked four. It was obvious that the Fords were non-plussed for several innings by Sheehan's southside delivery, but they managed to connect for timely bingles.

Mac McKenzie, Ford regular catcher, was unable to play Sunday because of an injury of his right hand sustained while working. The loss of Mac with the stick was felt, but his substitute behind the plate, Rose, did a fine job at receiving. Rose also found the seed for two bingles.

BANDIT GRAPPLES WITH WOMAN; TAKES PURSE AND ESCAPES

Threatens to Kidnap Child If Mother Is Not Quiet

Returning to her home after shopping last Friday afternoon, Mrs. L. K. Coy, of Centerville, was confronted by an overalls intruder who demanded her purse and whatever money she had in the house. After threatening her with violence and the kidnapping of her small child the thief ran from the house. He had taken the purse in which was about $15. The woman had told him she had no money at the time.

Mrs. Coy, who had left her child sleeping, went directly to the room in which it was, when she returned from town. As she entered the kitchen she saw the thief standing before her. He demanded that she pass over her purse and upon her refusal seized the article from her hand. She grappled with him, attempting to prevent the theft, and was thrown against a door. Told to keep quiet or that he would take her child as well, Mrs. Coy allowed the thief to run from the house. She notified the authorities at once, but no trace of the bandit was discovered. Constable Tom Silva, assisted by police from the surrounding towns, scoured the immediate territory, but the miscreant had apparently made good his escape.

"CHARM SCHOOL" FILLS W. U. H. S. AUDITORIUM

According to those who were fortunate enough to attend the "Charm School," senior play at the Washington Union High school last Friday night, the production was one of the best ever played by a graduating class. Much credit is due to Miss Aubrey Nicely for her patience in coaching the various players and for her direction of the performance as a whole.

Although the entire cast did splendidly, Jack Coley and Jewell Amaral, who played the leading parts, may be said to have given perfect performances. Jim Booras and Ernie Garcia, as the twin instructors in the "Charm School," furnished endless merriment as young and susceptible male teachers in an institution overflowing with attractive damsels.

The attendance was large, the auditorium being filled to capacity.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

SERIOUS BLAZE IS CHECKED BY FIREMEN

Spry action by the Niles Fire Department at noon last Thursday, prevented what may have been a serious blaze in the center of one of Niles' business blocks, when some rubbish was set ablaze behind Murphy's store by sparks from a fire lit by a cracker salesman who was disposing of some old boxes. An old counter that was resting against the rear wall of the store was blazing furiously when the firemen arrived. Flames were licking the eaves, as the conflagration became momentarily more serious. Told of the fire by a child who ran out of the store, Frank Perry, Niles youth, ran to the fire house and had the alarm turned in.

LARGE BLAZE DESTROYS SUNOL HOME SATURDAY

A fire of unknown origin burned the residence of Adolph Andrade, Sr., of Sunol, recently.

The home was located in the north-east end of town, between the Western and Southern Pacific railroad tracks. The fire was not noticed until the house was almost all burned, and too late to save anything. The house being the last in the one-way lane is the probable reason why the fire was not discovered earlier. Louis Farla, of Sunol, was the first to see the blaze, but too late to save any of the building.

The loss will approximate $3000 including furniture and clothing. Important surveyors maps, belonging to Adolph, Jr., were among the valuable papers burned which can never be replaced.

The house was vacant at the time of the fire. The men were away on a week-end fishing trip, and Grandma Andrade, as she is known to almost everyone in Sunol, was staying with her daughter, Mrs. M. McDermott, of Pleasanton.

Enthusiastic Committee Plans Pleasanton 4th July

Details Considered At A Well Attended Meeting

With enthusiasm dominating the meeting, the general committee for the Pleasanton July 4th celebration had an inspiring session at the City Hall last Monday eve. That this year's celebration is going to be a wonderful treat for the people who attend, is predicted from a resume of the committee plans. Every interesting feature is being carefully considered, and with the various chairman of the sub-committees chosen because of their qualifications, the many events will be in excellent hands.

John J. Amaral, as general chairman of the celebration, presided at the meeting, and every committeeman present expressed a willingness and desire to aid in putting the celebration over in tip top shape.

Men of years of experience, ladies who are leaders in the affairs of the community, and the younger generation of business men, banded in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, are working hand in hand to make this year's affair one that will long be remembered. Personal animosities are forgotten, private ambitions submerged, and all are joining in this great community project for the good of the town.

Tuesday evening the various subcommittee chairmen meet with the executive committee with full reports of what their committees had accomplished.

The various sub-committee chairmen who have been appointed to help work out the details for the show are, John J. Amaral, executive; Louis Fuchs, advertising; Crawford Letham, decorating; Cliff Rosa, Booster's dance; E. Schween, parades; Mrs. Charlotte Anderson, horse show; Bill Brenner, finance; Sam Glassey, concessions; John Amaral, track; Bill Brenner, street dance; Bill Hall, soda water; and Randolph Apperson, police.

Pleasanton Lady Is Given Surprise Shower

New Post Office Is Opened at Pleasanton

Last Wednesday morning saw the opening of one of the finest new post office buildings in California when the Pleasanton office, located on St. Marys street was thrown open to the public.

Citizens in general seemed to like the new location, and all were lavish in their praise of the new structure. The building was built by Herman Kohn and is of brick with large plate windows in the front. New type box fixtures have been installed and the most up-to-date system is in vogue.

Two dials adorn the new mail boxes, and letters of the alphabet are used instead of numbers in determining the combinations.

Instructions as to how to open the new boxes were given and they have met with the approval of the townspeople.

The Fable of Right One for Kirby

By GEORGE ADE

(© Bell Syndicate.)—WNU Service.
ONCE there was a prominent and unduly prosperous pair and after a time there appeared in their home something that answered to the Name of Kirby. To the Intelligent Reader much will be conveyed by the simple Statement that he was an Only Child. And, as so often happens, his entranced Parents seemed to believe that he was the Only One in the World.

There is an Old Saying that every Mother thinks her own Goose is a Swan and to carry the same Thought a little further it is not surprising that in this case the overjoyed Parents looked at their cunning little Noodle-head and saw in him the budding Greatness of Julius Caesar, William Shakespeare and Douglas Fairbanks all packed into one Parcel.

Those who have made a careful study of the ill-favored Children of the Unusually Rich must have been, at times, oppressed by the Thought that Washington struggled and Lincoln suffered and countless Brave Men faced the Dangers of Border Warfare in order that the more recent Specimens of the Rising Tide may sleep under Velvet Hangings in gaudy Palaces and have Serfs to wait on them, while all the Courts are organized to protect their Property Rights and large detachments of Motor Cops are stationed on the Highways to prevent them from committing Suicide.

Now, as this Piece of Veal emerged from the Nursery and began to be talked about in the Neighborhood in which he lived, it was not evident that he had any Characteristic Trait of any particular kind except a sublime Faith in his own Superiority.

Shooting Would Be Merciful.

The Surface of the Earth and the overhanging Firmament and the twinkling Stars had been assembled into a Stage Setting in preparation for his Entrance upon the Scene.

At the age of Fourteen he spelled it with two Ts but he had a magnificent contempt for all Persons who were either older or younger than himself.

For a Youth who had the Vivid Personality of a Mud Turtle, the moral Fiber of a Fish Worm and the nimble Wit of a Last Year Bird Nest it was surprising how many Folks noticed him and discussed him. There was a good deal of arguing back and forth about Kirby.

Those who had him directly under Observation couldn't seem to agree. Some said the Thing to do was to stand him up against a Wall and shoot him. Others stood out for Cyanide or Potassium. A third Faction favored throwing him from a high cliff on to some jagged Rocks below.

At the Age of 22, when Kirby was a rare Orchid to his Mother and a String of Garlic to the World in General, his Custodians began to work on what was known as his Intellect in order to induce him to formulate and sort of get together an Idea in regard to getting married.

No sooner was it whispered around that the Bermuda Prince was on the Market than a lot of apprehensive Parents got ready to secrete their eligible Daughters or hand them over to the First Applicants or do something desperate in order to save them from a Living Death.

Home Talent Not Worthy.

They need not have had any Tremors. Kirby and his Mamma, with the Face which had been hoisted by a Plastic Surgeon, and Papa, who had inherited so much Jack that he could wear side-whiskers, all agreed that there was not a Deb, Sub-Deb, Flapper, Cutie, or Damsel within a Radius of Fifty Miles who was sufficiently beautiful and talented and socially prominent and loaded down with Assets to qualify her to stand alongside of the World's best and receive a Life Sentence.

No use talking, any Woman worthy of Our Kirby would have to be out of the Ordinary. So they took him to Florida where the Picking was said to be good.

There is no Truth in the Report that they transported him in a Crate and occasionally pushed a Marshmallow to him, through the Bars. The Boy was very bright and snappy. He could go into the Diner, all by himself, and order Food unless he had to write it out, and after he would sit on a Chair and hold a Morning Paper in front of Himself and decide that most of the People in the World were very crude and everything that happened was awfully silly, after which he would smoke a Pill, always getting the Right End in his Mouth, because the Ends were similar. Of course, if they had permitted him to use Cork Tips, the Result might have been serious. From all of this foregoing Blurb and Blah it will be gathered that much depended upon finding some Sweet Girl who was worthy, in every way, of the Lollipop. It would have been a shame to let the Breed die out just as the Universe is facing so many intricate Problems.

The Girl Who Didn't Know a Good Thing When She Saw It.

On a Beach near the Gulf Stream they found One that weighed and measured all right and had an Invalid Father who owned a Railway, but after they talked to her a few Days they discovered that she was Dumb. Beautiful but absolutely still and lifeless above the Pearl Necklace. If she had married Kirby probably the Offspring would have turned out to be Dancing Instructors. So she went into the discard.

There was another Candidate who was there with the Pep and the Bank Roll and a Family Tree and about four tons of Pulehrude but she tied a Can to Kirby within Five Minutes after meeting him and that Prospect went cold.

This was the first Intimation the Parents had ever received that any Member of the so-called Weaker Sex could possibly turn down a chance to hook up with the Heir Apparent. In the Home Town, where Kirby and all of his Kin were Sacred White Elephants, the Impression had been that he was a Capital Prize, the Answer to the Maiden's Prayer, Idol of the Women and Envy of the Men.

In the great Outside World he came into direct Competition with those genial Lads who combine University Training with the playful Instinct of a Cave Man. They can drink Tea on a Bet and do a lot of Dancing just to avoid getting to Bed, but their real Trade is licking Taxi Drivers. Alongside of these hard-boiled Buries, the refined and well-mannered Kirby seemed to belong to the Vegetable Kingdom. He not only had no Sex Appeal but had not heard much about it.

He was taken from one Place to another by his careful Guardians in the Hope that somewhere, at some time, the Perfect Woman would show up and discover in Kirby all of those lovely Traits which were evident to his Parents but otherwise non-existent.

Kirby is Captured.

Possibly everything would have turned out O. K. but for the Fact that one Evening in the Lobby of a Hotel in New York, the Keepers allowed him to ramble along Peacock Alley, where he was vamped and abducted by a large and sney Amazon who needed Money.

When she went at Kirby it was just like a Battle between a Boa Constrictor and an English Sparrow.

Of course you are saying now that his people paid her a large sum of Money and arranged for a Divorce. Nothing of that kind. She was a large, masterful self-supporting Creature who had knocked around the World and done Everything except brake on the Nickel Plate.

She put into the Partnership everything which Kirby didn't have—Courage, Determination, Business Sense, Initiative and a first-hand knowledge of the Wicked World.

It seemed that her wire-haired Spaniel had been stolen the Week before and Kirby was just what she needed to keep her from being lonesome.

To the Parents she proved her entire Fitness for the High Honor by agreeing with them that Kirby was desirable.

Now she counts his Money for him every Morning and tells him what Necktie to wear and everything is Great.

Crumbling Church Is an Ancient Rome Reminder

Strange vestiges of the days of Ancient Rome when paganism was being supplanted by Christianity have come to light amid the crumbling remains of primitive churches at Spoleto, Italy. Archaeologists have found that at the same time the famous Church of the Crucifix was built there in the Fifth century, a pagan temple was being constructed a short distance away, but was later changed into a Christian church.

Tremendous significance is attached to the archeological finds at Spoleto because they show how two civilizations overlapped, the dying paganism of the old Romans and the rising Christianity of the new. Here, chiseled out of stone in the Third or Fourth century, has been found one of the original Roman laws dealing with life in the woods. It has been translated to read:

"Nobody is permitted to carry away that which belongs to this forest except on the day when the annual sacrifice is made. Anyone who sacrifices a bull to Jupiter on any other day will be guilty of a sin and subject to a fine of 300 coins."

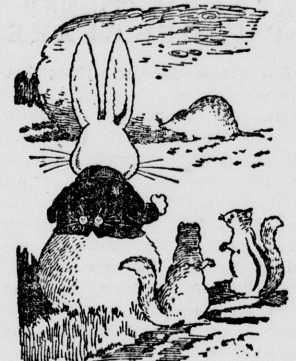

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER HAS TO LAUGH AT HIMSELF

IF EVER in all his life Peter Rabbit was sure of a thing he was sure that that dark gray form he had seen vanish under an old log not far off was a Mole. It wasn't big enough for Miner himself, but it might be one of his children, and Peter was certain, absolutely certain it was. That is why he had so flatly and impolitely contradicted Happy Jack Squirrel when the latter had said that it was Short-Tail the Shrew. Not even when a sharp squeaky voice from under the log asked what Happy Jack and Striped Chipmunk were laughing at, and Happy Jack replied that they were laughing at Peter's long-time mistake, did Peter believe he was wrong.

"They are laughing because I said that you are a member of Miner the Mole's family," cried Peter. "Come out and show yourself and then we'll laugh at them."

At that Happy Jack and Striped Chipmunk laughed harder than ever and from under the old log came sounds which were suspiciously like high squeaky laughter.

For a Long Minute Peter Stared.

"Yes, do come out just for fun and see who will do the laughing."

"Is it perfectly safe out there?" asked the sharp squeaky voice.

"If it wasn't do you suppose I would be sitting out here in the open?" demanded Striped Chipmunk.

"It is pretty bright out there. You know I don't like the sun. I don't like it at all," complained the sharp squeaky voice.

"There isn't enough sun to hurt you," retorted Happy Jack. "You can keep in the shade. Come out and meet Peter Rabbit."

"I don't need to meet Peter Rabbit," squeaked the sharp voice under the log. "I know all I need to know about him. I've seen him so often that I had just as soon not see him again for awhile."

"Huh!" exclaimed Peter. "I don't care anything about meeting you. You're nothing but a Mole, anyway."

"I'm a Mole, am I?" squeaked the sharp voice angrily. "I'm a Mole, am I? I'll have you know I'm nothing of the kind. Miner's family may be all right, but I'm thankful to say that I am not even a connection. It's time, Peter Rabbit, that you knew the difference between a Mole and a Shrew. I would have you know there is no Mole about me!"

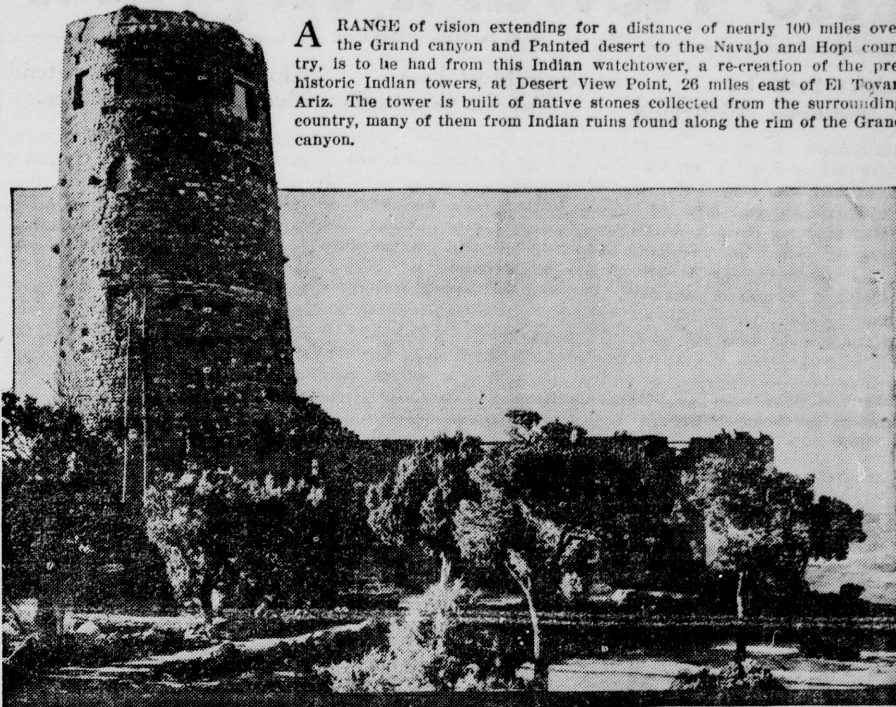

With this out darted the dark gray form Peter had seen vanish under the log. It darted out right in front of Peter and chattered angrily. Abruptly Peter sat up and his mouth dropped open so that he looked absolutely foolish. It was true that this wasn't a Mole. Now that he had a good look he could see that, while the shape was somewhat like that of Miner the Mole, and the fur was very much like that of Miner, the head was different and there was a very great difference in the front feet. Plainly, this was a stranger to Peter, and yet he knew that he had seen Short-Tail often. That is, he had had many just such glimpses as when Short-Tail had darted under the old log. The truth is he never had looked sharply enough to see that it wasn't a member of the Mole family.

For a long time Peter stared. Then he did a wise thing; he joined in the laughter of Happy Jack Squirrel and Striped Chipmunk. "I have to laugh at myself," he confessed. "The joke is very much on me. I thought I knew everybody around here, but I find I didn't."

Then he stopped laughing and turning to Short-Tail the Shrew, he said very politely: "I hope you will excuse me, Neighbor Shrew, and I hope in the future I may become really acquainted with you."

Prehistoric Hopi Indian Tower Reconstructed

The tower is built of native stones collected from the surrounding country, many of them from Indian ruins found along the rim of the Grand canyon.

Bring a Girl

By JANE OSBORN

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

"BUT I told you when you 'phoned this morning, that I couldn't come—" Ned Fairfax was holding his telephone with one hand and signing letters with the other, reading them, and talking to his sister all at one time. "I've got a day's work at the office still before me and it's nearly five. One of the men is away in the output department and I've got to go over there and take care of his mail, I'll be dictating until nine."

"But you've got to come, simply got to," his sister Nellie informed him. "It will absolutely ruin that party if you don't. You are needed to make up the fourth table. That's all there is about it."

Nellie hung up the receiver and Jim realized that he would have to do his sister's bidding. As a matter of fact he had finished with his own work. He would go over to the output department where he had been told a stenographer would be waiting for him, work an hour, send out for a sandwich and a cup of coffee and plod ahead until nine.

He was not entirely sorry that he was going. Nellie had told him that she had arranged to have an attractive girl there for him.

Then his telephone rang again. "Say, Ned," came his sister's voice. "You've got to bring a girl. That girl Molly was bringing for you can't come. She mixed up her dates and finds she was going to dinner and the opera. Molly says she's a winner. Oh, well, we'll have you meet yet." Nellie would listen to none of Ned's protests. How could he ask a girl at that late hour? What sort of a girl would go with a man when she didn't know the hostess? Ned wanted to know. But Nellie wasn't interested in details. Simply she expected Ned, and a girl, to appear as soon after nine as possible.

Ned did try to get a girl, called up two or three friends who politely found excuses. Only thing to do was to go himself without a girl, and take the consequences. Fortunately the dictating went along smoothly enough, the stenographer who was waiting for him in the output department was a good one. Not the sort that wasted time. He sent out for sandwiches and coffee for two, and then stopped for ten minutes to eat. Then he noticed for the first time that the girl was at least presentable.

"What are you doing after you get through here?" he asked.

"Going home," said the girl.

"You get paid so much an hour for overtime. Any objections for working a few hours more? Not just this sort of work, playing bridge. Do you play bridge?"

The girl looked at him narrowly. "Yes," she said. "I never refuse a chance to make an honest nickel. Trying to save enough to go to college. That's why I do overtime work here."

Ned continued his dictating with a load off his shoulders and once or twice as he dictated he regarded the girl a little more narrowly than he had before. Well, she wasn't bad looking, she'd pass in any crowd. He'd introduce her as an old friend. "What's your name?" he asked abruptly.

"Laura Hough," she told him. "I'll have to call you Laura," he said. "You're an old friend of mine, any objection?"

"No," said Laura dryly.

The dictation over, Laura went to the dressing room to primp a little and reappeared, closely wrapped in her trim fur coat. When she slipped it off twenty minutes later in the hall of Nellie's apartment Ned saw that she was wearing a neat little evening frock. "How come?" said Ned with an appraising glance.

"I had it in the office," she said. "I had expected to go out." But she got no further. Nellie and Molly were greeting her with shrieks of surprise.

"So you got here after all," said Molly. "What about the opera and your date?"

"Here's my date," said Laura. "The opera didn't last as long as I thought it would, and I'm here."

"If you really are the girl I think you are," Ned asked her drawing her aside, "how come you're working? Molly thinks you have all sorts of money, and she really believed the opera story."

"Of course that was a joke more or less," said the girl. "But I'm not quite the poor little working girl you might suppose, and I could have gone to the opera if I had wanted. You see I wanted to go to college, but my father had objections. So I got a job on the sly to earn enough money to go anyway. I'd have to have some sort of a career."

"Unless you married?" suggested Ned.

"May I consider that a proposal?" asked Laura loud enough for Molly and Nellie to overhear.

"Please don't joke about it too much," Ned said so that only Laura heard. "I might have courage some day to ask you."

And later when Ned and Laura announced their engagement it was generally understood that their troth had been plighted there in Nellie's little apartment that night.

Expedition to Uncover Ancient City of Lachish

London.—The Old Testament City of Lachish, about 25 miles south of Jerusalem, where the prophet Isaiah prayed that the city be saved from the Assyrians with the result that 18,000 Assyrians were destroyed mysteriously overnight, is to be uncovered.

Sir Henry Wellcome, fellow of the Royal society, soon will send an expedition into Palestine to clear away the sands of centuries from the city which fell before Sennacherib's armies. Various American archeological interests also will be represented.

Those interested in Biblical history are looking forward to the findings of the expedition because successive cities built on the foundations and ruins of older cities make Old Testament geography and history perplexing. Authorities think that Tell Duweir is the site of the ancient City of Lachish, and excavations in the environs are expected to reveal the stronghold of the children of Israel.

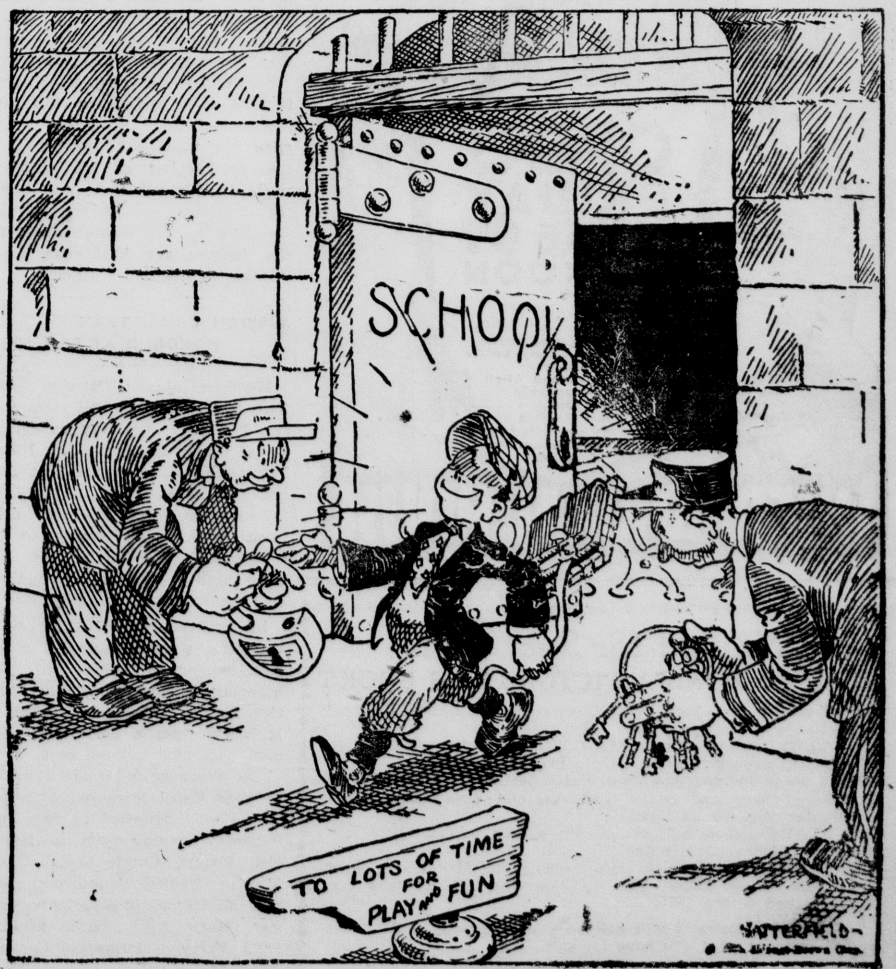

Chicago's Gain 49,000; Population Is 3,524,000

Chicago.—Chicago's population was increased by 49,000 in 1932, bringing the total number of residents in the nation's second largest city to 3,524,000. J. E. Vesley, research director of the Association of Commerce, disclosed.

The increase was under the average annual growth of 67,500 of the past decade.

Suspension Bridges

There is a popular notion to the effect that the even tread of a small animal, such as a cat or dog walking over a suspension bridge, will cause vibration enough to endanger the bridge. It is true that suspension bridges are all flexible, vibrating or swaying when objects move over them, and that even a small animal walking over would set up a very sharp vibration. Experts have shown that a few soldiers marching over a long suspension bridge in regular step would produce a greater vibration than a much larger force out of step; consequently they are ordered to break step before crossing. In 1850, a suspension bridge in France broke down under 487 soldiers marching in step, and nearly half of them were killed.

Teachers Seek To Maintain Attendance

The Newark Grammar school teachers are making a supreme effort to hold the attendance of the school for the year at a point that will draw an extra teacher's allotment of money for the next year. A teacher's car brought four children to school Monday morning because the children's home was too far away for walking.

The last requirement for graduation from a grammar school in California is to pass an examination showing one's knowledge of the federal constitution. The Newark pupils will be examined Friday of this week.

The examination will cover 200 true-false statements covering the entire constitution. The test is probably the most comprehensive given any grammar school class in California.

the world over in the application of new ideas. His passing leaves a place in the community that will be hard to fill.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sybil Fisher, and by one son and one daughter—Abel Fisher, of Butler, Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Clarence Martenstein, of Niles. Another son, Joseph Fisher, died in Butler several years ago. There are six grandchildren.

Funeral service was at 10:00 o'clock Tuesday morning from the Chapel of the Palms at Centerville. Cremation followed at the Chapel of Chimes, Oakland.

The Rev. W. J. Attwood officiated at the funeral services.

"I'LL HOLD YOUR WATCH" SAYS BO; VICTIM SAYS "O.K."

Placing his faith in an unshaven traveling companion who had shared the box-car top with him from Fresno, John Smith, itinerant, last week lost his watch and fifteen dollars. According to Smith, the companion advised him to steer clear of Niles, saying that hoboes who inhabited the jungles here were of a particularly dangerous variety, and that a stranger carrying a watch and currency had about as much chance as the proverbial tallow dog chasing the asbestos cat.

Smith listened with wide eyes to this tale, and when the latter pulled into the Niles yards, gave his watch and money into the safekeeping of his advisor, while he (Smith) went into town for groceries. Smith learned, to his dismay, that if the boys in the jungles are hard, the ones on the car tops are slippery.

WINDOW AWNINGS AT JOE'S CORNER CUT OFF GLARE

Glorious sunshine is a thing that can be carried a bit too far, thinks the proprietor of Joe's Corner, Niles soft drink parlor and billiard room. Situated as it is on the southwest corner of an intersection, the establishment receives the full glare of the afternoon sun. Direct sunlight, admitted through the row of windows high in the north wall, has been the bane of afternoon customers, as well as hard on the proprietor's eyes.

To remedy the condition, there has been installed a series of small awnings, one over each of the offending windows. Chosen with an eye to blending in the scheme of the building, the awnings, of a modulated brown tone, add to the swank appearance of one of Niles' most attractive structures.
